WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Attorney-General Knox in answer to inquiries as to whether the bill recently introduced in the Senate to amend the interstate commerce and santi-frust laws so as to relieve foreign commerce from their operation and so as to enable contracts to be entered into in reasonable restraint of commerce, was introduced with the knowledge and approval of the "dministration, replied "absolutely no."

In response to a question as to his views on the wisdom of such an amendament of the law, he replied:

"Just one year ago it was proposed to offer as an amendment to one of the pending bills in Congress exactly this same measure. At that time the Prosident requested an expression of my views as to the proposed amendment, with the remark that its proponents claimed that it was in harmony with a suggestion made by me in an address at Pittsburg. I then prepared and submitted to the President an expression of my views. I then said and still think:

"The scope of the proposed amendment is so broad that one ought not to attempt to define its limits without long reflection. At first glance, however, it seems to me that it would have the effect of repealing section five of an act to regulate commerce, which is popularly known as the anti-pooling clause. That section makes it unlawful for railronds to pool their earnings or divide their traffic.

"The amendment also proposed to repeal the interstate commerce law and the anti-trust law so far as foreign commerce is concerned. This would result in giving foreign commerce an advantage over domestic commerce for the relief form

"While it may be a wise policy to incorporate the rule of reasonableness into the regulation by law of contracts between individuals and contracts of industrial corporations which are private corporations that rule has never been appiled to what are known as quast public corporations—railroads for example, which exercise public functions and enjoy public rights. They owe dutics to the public as the consideration of the grant to them of public franchises among which is the duty to refrain from restraining them of public franchises among which is the duly to refrain from restraining competition in rates, service and facilities. This amendment would tend to relieve them from many of their most important duties to the public. Its enterment instead of being a protection to commerce, would be to affect an undoing of very much of the most important remedial legislation of the past fifteen years."

Mr. Knox says the statement that the proposed amendment is in the with his Pittaburg address is a great inistake.

"His Brother's Crime," at the Bijou, is something of a life saver.

He was out in the Mediterranean Sea one day last summer in a steamer, when a party of six in a row boat capsized. There was great commotion on board the big boat, and a rope was thrown over to the struging men in the water.

The rope was attached to a hawser on the vessel, and the men in the water managed to turn the boat right side up again. Then they got in, and as the party on the big boat was hauling away the hawser broke. Then it was up to Mr. Irving.

Suit Against North Carolina Decided in Favor of South

IN U. S. SUPREME COURT

Decree Will be Entered Requiring North State to Pay

(By Associated Fress.)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The case of the State of South Dakota vs. the State of North Carolina was to-day decided by the State of South Dakota vs. the State of North Carolina was to-day decided by the United States Supreme Court favorably to South Dakota. The case involves the validity of a mortgage on stock of the North Carolina Railroad Company given by the Blate of North Carolina to secure the payment of State bonds given in aid of the road in 1867. The State of South Dakota holds ten bonds of $1,000 each under a gift from Simon Schafer and Samuel M. Schafer, of New York city, the amount due on the bonds and coupons attached being $27,000.

The opinion was rendered by Justice Brewer, and the decree of the court was embodied in the following order:

"A decree will, therefore, be entored, which, after finding the amount due on the bonds and coupons in suit to be $27,000, no interest being recoverable, and that the same are secured by one hundred shares of stock of the North Carolina Railroad Company, belonging to the State of North Carolina, and directs that the said State of North Carolina, pay said amount to the State of South Dakota, and that in default of such payment an order of sale be issued to the marshal of this court, directing him to sell at public auction all the interest of the State of North Carolina in and marshal of this court, directing him to sell at public auction all the inferest of the State of North Carolina in and to one hundred shares of the capital stock of the North Carolina. Railroad Company, such sale to be made at the east front door of the Capital building in this city, public notice to be given of such sale by advertisements in some daily paper published in the city of Raleigh, N. C. and also in some daily paper published in the city of Washington."

The Chief Justice and Justices White, McKenna and Day united in a dissenting opinion.

The decision of the court is considered an apt one and marks a new departure an apt one and marks a new departure in ordering the sale of property in dispute in case of failure to satisfy a judgment. Coming to that point, Justice Brewer said there was "no reasonable doubt of the validity of the bonds and mortgages in controversy," nor "question respecting the title of South Dakota to the bendar," He also asserted the juris. to the bonds." He also asserted the juris-diction of the court in cases brought by one State against another to enforce one State against another to enforce property rights. He added:

"We are confronted with the content to enforce such a judgment, and that such lack of power is conclusive evidence that, notwithstanding the general language of the Constitution, there is an implied exception of actions brought to recover money. The public property held by any municipality, city, country or State is exempt from selzure upon execution because it is held by such corporation, not as a part of its private assets, but as a trustee for public purposes."

"There is in this case a mortgage of property; and the sale of that property the foreclosure of the mortgage was set-tled by Christian vs. ...iantic and North Carolina Railroad Company. Equity is satisfied by a decree for a foreclosure and sale of the mortgaged property, leaving the question of a judgment over for any deficiency, to be determined when, if ever, it arises, And, surely if, as we have often held, this court has jurisdiction of an action by one State against another to recover a tract of

The bonds were presented to South Da kota for the aid of the State University and with the end in view of prevailing upon that State to bring an original action in the Supreme Court, which action has now proved successful. There are about $250,000 worth of other bonds outstanding.

Melodrama at Bijou Comes Very Near to Being a Real / Tragedy.

BRIDGE BREAKS TOO SOON

Horses, Coach, Leading Lady and All in a Terrible Confus deTangle on Stage.

Realism beyond the wildest expectations of the audience, was witnessed at the Bifou last night in the third act of the melodrama, "For Hils Brother's Crime." In the great bridge scene, in which a coach, drawn by two horses, with three passengers in the vehicle, dashes across the structure, the pintform gave way before the modern Hercules had taken up his position under it, and horses, the leading lady, two of the actors, the coach, and the bridge fell to the stage with a crash, and there was as pretty a wreck as one could imagine. There was a scene of wild contusion of the stage, but before the audience realized that this wonderfully realistic effect wasn't a part of the piece, the curtain had been rung down, and Mr. Montgomery Irving, the strong man who is starring in the play, was engaged in doing the heaviest work of the evening, that of dragging out the struggling horses from the debris. When everything and everybody finally became extricated from the tangle, it was found that the leading lady, Miss Bardine, jiad escaped with a torn skirt; that Mr. Edward Simpson had received a paluful kick from one of the horses, and that Major, one of the two white steeds used in the plece, had badily bruised a leg. The horse was sent to the stable to be examined by a veterinarian, Mr. Simpson was provided with a stimulant: the ruffled feelings of the leading lady were soothed, and then the corach. The players took the safer method of crossing the bridge on foot, the villainas hammered the structure until it fell from its supports, and the hero, the strong man, rushed under the bridge, and like a Hercules, bore its weight until all had passed in safety to the opposite side. The incident caused more excitement on the stage than it did among the audience, naturally enough, too, for he players were most concerned.

SENEATIONAL MELODRAMA.

The play "For His Brothers Crime," is a melodrama, outside of the scenic effects, and surely the bridge seems is treated, and the motives of the villain are the same o'll motives that have stood him in good stead these many years in the next scene with no more distress-ing wounds than sprained wrists and wrenched ankies. In a play that ad-mits of such a miraculous escape as that, how can we expect that the fall of a stage coach and pair of horses will even malm any of the occupants. In order to do any real damage to these people, it would seem that some skyserance acciwould seem that some skyscraper acci-dent would be needed. Slight falls like that from a third story window are to them only like the knocks a baby re-ceives when learning to walk.
